DEATH VALLEY HIKING

"The idea of Death Valley had always intrigued me, but the reality of the place is amazing." —Jens Legallet, Lake Tahoe, CA

Don't let the name fool you. Death Valley National Park is home to 400 wildlife species and offers some of the most spectacular scenery in the U.S. The wind- and sand-sculpted canyons, alluvial fans and salt flats provide a backdrop for some of the most unique hikes you will ever experience.

HIGHLIGHTS:

- Spectacular geology
- Canyons, alluvial fans, salt flats, and sand dunes
- Fascinating human history
- Elevations from 282 ft below sea level to 11,049 ft above sea level

WHAT TO EXPECT:

Our trip begins in Las Vegas where the guides will meet you and whisk you away to the Furnace Creek Ranch, about two and one-half hours and a world away. While in Death Valley, we will undertake a series of short hikes and all-day hikes in order to gain an overview of what the Park has to offer. As we explore such places as Mosaic Canyon, Marble Canyon, the Artist's Palette, the Devil's Golf Course, The Sand Dunes and the Keane Wonder Mine we begin to get a feel for the geologic and human history of the Park. No visit to the Park is complete without a walk on the Badwater salt flats, the lowest point in the lower 48 states at 282 feet below sea level. It is all uphill from there!

On our final full day, uphill we will hike to Wildrose Peak (9,064 ft.) gaining a bird's eye view of the mysteriously beautiful world we have enjoyed all week.
